

Since cable companies hold a natural monopoly, due to their ownership of the physical wiring into homes, of course they should be compelled to open this essential resource to competition.